Views of Various Parisians on the Result of the Elections, in France—A French Opinion of Nationalism—Notes
As Told by Detectors—Notes.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—The second and last act of the great electoral drama has been played and France has virtually settled whether or not she is contented to leave her destinies in the hands of the Republicans. According to the alarmists it will not pass off without a disturbance. Rumor of impending riot and of bloodshed were being industriously spread in the provinces, and a few crazy Socialist papers in Paris make loud threats more and more by denouncing over the excesses or death of the monarchist pretenders.
The Republican leaders are also anxious, for they have not completely succeeded in beating their internal divisions. The high discussion in this instance might mean other defeat. The Republicans are not yet united and Opportunists will play their cards and vote for the "unique" coalition list, in which lies the only hope of victory.

The attitude of the Socialist workmen, who despite both wings of the Republican parliamentary party, is obscure; therefore interviewed their spokesmen, including several presidents and secretaries of workmen's syndicates.

Claude Verrin, ex-municipal councillor and member of various Socialist societies, was working at an American brake factory when the reporter called. He is an intelligent man, but a little nervous and not a bit anxious of his house.

"We have just placed ourselves all over Paris," he said, "announcing the withdrawal of the Socialist candidates. We don't advise the Socialist to vote for the coalition."

"No, I don't expect to see the Conservatives gain a majority, but it is certain that the present state of things cannot last. Discontent is rife throughout Paris and the provinces on account of the shocking state of trade."

"If things continue as they are a movement of the workmen will take place later than later, but people who talk of riots don't know the suburbs. So long as the Conservatives keep to parliamentary action, the working men won't fight the battles of the bourgeoisie Republicans for the overthrow of the conservative and the latter gain in popularity. Trade would only go from bad to worse, and a rising in the suburbs would be probable. The Frenchmen are not so naïve as you are, but we are anyway determined to defend the republic. No attempt to overthrow it could be made without a civil war."

"What do I think of the scrutin de liste?
Is an aristocratic device to save the Republic from the trouble of facing their electors."

"The 'Glaucier Syndicate' was smoking and discussing trade questions in the barroom of a wine-shop in the rue Talbot when the visit of a 'Citizen correspondent of an American paper' was announced to the citizen president of the meeting.

"Citizen," said that dignitary, "our status forbids my expressing a political opinion on behalf of the syndicate, but, speaking for myself, I advise workmen to obey discipline, to put their personal feeling aside and to vote the Republican Coalition ticket."

"To keep out the reactionaries, and many of my friends think we do. Disturbances! Ah! you foreigners are not the only people who have got that idea. The reactionaries are doing their best to propagate it. Alas, there will be no disturbances."

"Reassure your compatriots, citizen," ironically added a volatile citizen who sat near the speaker.

The reporter next drove to a dingy wine shop in the Marais, where the excited menbers of the 'Citizen Correspondent' system were denouncing the intrigues of the bourgeois.

The secretary, a thriving, well dressed workman, was reserved, the rules of the association being exceptionally stringent.

"I am myself a radical-republican Socialist," said he, "but we never discuss politics.
Each member votes as he chooses. I am in favor of union, and I shall vote the coalition Republican ticket. Maybe I shall strike out a name and name and substitute others. Hoot! Oh, no. A few silly or reckless people may make a row, but that counts."

"When the secretary had resumed his duties the reporter interviewed a sensible glider in a wine shop. 'Citizen,' said he, "don't believe a word about riots. To the Republic there is no danger in this seeming success. It will turn to the confusion of the conservatives. We shall now once more be united." And off he started.

Citizen Broussé Deter, a proletarian and a great gun among the modern Socialists, said: "We have withdrawn our candidates and restored to every one the liberty of action rather than expose the dup of parliamentary Republicans like Clemenceau to the have taken advantage of the connection caused by the Conservative success to form an alliance with Allain Turgue, Floquet and Brisson. A Conservative majority is impossible. They have carried nearly every secret vote already. If they tried to upset the republic there would be civil war. The workmen would fight on the baricade. The peasantry have voted for the Conservative because they were assured that there would be no change in the form of government. Change would mean persecution, which they hate."

"An attempt at a monarchist restoration would be checked by the senate. A dissolution would be useless, and the next election would return an overwhelming Republican majority. Should there be any disturbances we would be assured the workmen will have nothing to do with the city, while the Republican form of government is immortal."

French Mothers-in-Law.

PARIS, Oct. 20.—A new impetus to the popular feeling against the mothers-in-law has just been provoked by a very sensational poisoning case just concluded at the Beauseuil. A daughter of a rich family, who artificial flowers, was charged by her mother-in-law with poisoning his first wife, whose maiden-name was Marie David.

While living at Noisy, in 1881, Ribout and his wife received an angry letter and bordered a very pretty girl in a named Lucie Quier. Shortly afterwards the Quier's mother, who had been living with the Ribouts and his wife to help care of her daughter, and premises were made that they would do so. The pretty young girl encouraged the fascinations of Ribout, whose wife conceived her vexation. Madame Ribout was seized on February 4, 1884, with violent vomitings, and died on the 15th of the next month.

About a fortnight before his wife's death Ribout, in the presence of his witnesses, invoked a spirit by means of table turning, and pretended to receive from the spirit the following answers to questions that he put:

"How long will it be before Mlle. Lucie marries?"

"In three months. She will marry a widower."

"The wife of this man still living?"

"How long will it be before he is a widower?"

"Three months."

Lucie Quier was present when this occurred, and inquired when the answers to the questions were announced.

Shortly before the death of Mme. Ribout her husband had promised at her request to marry Lucie, and this had given her much gratification. At the funeral the accused and Quier laughed to each other and confessed themselves in a way that shocked those present. Two or three days after they had announced that they were engaged, and on July 2, 1884, they were married. These facts awakened the suspicions of Mme. David, the mother of the deceased wife.

On September 24, Mme. David ascertained from a man named Aubert, who had been in the employment of the accused, that during her husband's life she was present with a prescription to a druggist was not refused to give the medicine.

"The doctor," said the druggist, "is an old man, or else he has made some mistake. I cannot make it up still I have written to him."

The wife was written and addressed to Dr. Guillaume, Noisy le Sec, but it was returned with the statement that no such doctor was known there.

The druggist had kept the prescription, which was produced in court. Ribout at first pretended that he had no notion of the pretended prescription. Then he said that he had written it and that his purpose was to obtain medicine, a poisonous substance and as a dye. In his possession the body of Mme. Ribout was disinterred, but nothing could be discovered by the medical men to explain her death by natural causes. The presence of colchicine, a vegetable poison, it would be difficult to detect ten months after the death. The body of the deceased had been examined by the autopsy and the chemical analysis were consistent with the hypothesis that she had been poisoned, but that the scientific evidence was not complete.

After the examination of the body a letter written by Ribout to his wife was intercepted, in which he tells her to deny all she knows, and says that all their children are buried, and that it is impossible for the authorities ever to find out the facts. Ri-bout denied that he wrote this letter, but the experts declared it to be his handwriting.

Ribout is a bluff, honest looking peasant, but in answer to the questions of the reporter I never could very much about my first wife. She was idly and always incapable. The reason I married my second wife (Lucie) so soon after the death of my first wife was because her father was about to start for the Congo and I was eager to provide a home for her."

After a mass murder investigation, Professor Vulpian and Dr. Broussé Deter and Ogier were unable to find in the room of Mme. Ribout any traces of poison. Professor Vulpian said:

In Course of Construction.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—There have been a number of fine houses built in this city during the present year, many of which will be occupied by December. The most elaborate trimmings have been put in them.
As a rule, the new houses are of hard wood.
In some of them specially made furniture will be placed to correspond with the finish of the rooms. The rage for what is known as artistic furniture is just now at its height.
The question of cost never seems to be considered any more in the furnishing of these houses. The effort appears to be to have it to have it cost as much as possible. Washington now claims to have some of the finest furnishings in the world. In many of them the furniture has consumed more money than was required to build the house in the first place. There are many beautiful houses are very expensive. Some of them are very ugly; but there is an individual taste about them that is somewhat refreshing. The old-

The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette is calling on the people to boycott the Enquirer. This sounds very much like the cry of a big, blubbery ogre, who has been "downed" in a fight, calling on the by-standers to take the other fellow off.

REV. A. M. VARDAMAN assisted by Revs. W. P. Harvey and R. B. Garrett, organized on Sunday night a Baptist Church of twenty-two members at Dover, Mason County. The sermon was preached by Rev. R. B. Garrett, the charge by Rev. W. P. Harvey and the covenant read by Rev. A. M. Vardaman. Messrs. Cleveland and Wilson were elected and ordained as deacons of the new church.

GOVERNOR REED J. HENSON FORAKER of Ohio will, it is said, go to New York to see his friends, the Republicans, out in that State. "Little Breeches" will probably expatiate in eloquent terms on the subject. "How I knocked Hoadly out in the second round," but then he should remember that he didn't do so much of the work as he thinks he did. The fact of the matter is, Hoadly knocked himself out.

No Mystery About It.

There are no mysteries or secrets about the up and coming of Brown's Bitters. The preparation of it is in the only way that can be taken without injuring the teeth or stomach. It gives vigor to the feeble, life to the debilitated, and health to the dyspeptic. You need not fear to give it to the most delicate child. Mrs. Emma Williams, of Starkweather, Miss., says, "It relieved my daughter of dyspepsia and myself of general debility."

THE GERMAN TOWN FAIR.

Last Day—A Successful Meeting.

The thirty-first annual meeting of the Union Agricultural Society closed on Saturday last. The weather at the first was very disagreeable, but on the last two days was all that could be desired. The show of stock was very fine and the entries large. The crowd increased each day and fully 6,000 were present on Saturday. Hauke's band furnished the music throughout the week and was much complimented both by the officers of the association and the visitors. The fair was a success socially and financially, and will compare favorably with any of the previous fairs.

The following is a list of premiums awarded on the fourth day:

Judge A. E. Cole was at the fair.

Mr. George W. Rogers was attentive to the ladies.

Colonel James W. Staton made a very popular speech.

Mr. George Adamson gave the ladies a great deal of "advice."

The ladies regretted that Secretary Joseph A. Walton was kept so very busy.

The fair was the most successful one of the season, both socially and financially.

Colonel Alex Calvert was called from the "courtin' gallery" to act as judge. This was cruel.

Mr. James Threlkeld is a very graceful bicyclist. The ladies all won a great many bananas on the race.

Hon. Charles D. Newell, Democratic nominee for County Attorney, graced the fair with his presence on Saturday.

Mr. C. S. Young was the ladies' man of the occasion. He thinks of making his home in the blue grass region.

The Centennial of the Washington Baptist Church.

On last Saturday and Sunday the one hundredth anniversary of the constitution of the Washington Baptist Church was appropriately celebrated at the town of Washington. It is a fact not generally known that the town was founded and laid out by a Baptist preacher, and was the first town in the west named after General George Washington.

On Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. A. M. Vardaman, the present pastor, delivered an opening address of welcome to the large audience assembled, after which Professor C. J. Hall read a history of the church which was exceedingly interesting, and the audience listened breathlessly to the story of the struggles and triumphs of the little band of brethren.

After the essay, Rev. A. M. Vardaman read some old letters written by different members of the church in the early part of this century. One of these letters was particularly interesting. It was written by Rev. Platt Stout in 1818 to Mr. Joseph Forman and was entirely occupied in telling of the conversion of a poor old negro, showing the relations existing between master and slave. At 12 o'clock the audience was invited to partake of a feast which had been prepared by ladies of the whole community, irrespective of denominational lines. The sermons at the Methodist camp meetings and Baptist associations and Democratic barbecues in Kentucky and Virginia, but never before has he seen it in this wise.

The seats had been removed from the Presbyterian Church, and the long tables spread throughout the entire length of building, and the tables were piled with everything the season affords, and when the crowd fell back exhausted, you could scarcely see an impression had been made upon the supply of viands. In the afternoon, Rev. C. Keyes entertained the audience with "Reminiscences" of old pastors and members of the church. At 7:30 o'clock, Rev. R. B. Garrett preached upon the subject, "Who are the Baptists, and what have they done for the world."

On Sunday morning it is thought that the crowd numbered fully one thousand. The house was crowded to its fullest capacity and hundreds could not get in. Rev. J. H. Spencer, D. D. of Louisville, Ky., author of the "History of Kentucky Baptists," now in press, spoke for one hour and a half on "One Hundred Years of Baptist History." Those who heard it spoke of it as one of the grandest efforts they ever heard. Hon. W. H. Wadsworth declared it the best thing of the kind he had ever listened to. At the close of Dr. Spencer's address, Rev. W. P. Harvey took a collection to aid in repairing the old home, which amounted to $170. Then the large crowd was entertained again by the ladies with a dinner which, it is said, even surpassed the one on Saturday. All who attended this meeting were delighted and speak in the highest terms not only of the proceedings but of the hospitality of the people of Washington, as well. It was a day long to be remembered in that little city.

A Narrow Escape.

William Beck and Jerry Green, a couple of farmers from Wilson's Bottom, narrowly escaped drowning, Monday afternoon, about 1 o'clock, in the river opposite the Fifth Ward landing. They had come to this city earlier in the day, and were starting on their return home in a skiff.

The Lioness No. 2 was passing them on her way up stream with a number of empires in tow. Beck and Green thought they would "die on" to the towboat and thus be saved the trouble of pulling their skiff home, and would get a nice boat-ride in the bargain. They accordingly, by hard work, made their way to the steamer, which was about midway the stream. The Lioness was travelling at a faster rate than the couple imagined, and on the attempt being made to fasten on to her the skiff was whirled around and overturned. Beck grabbed hold of the steamer and was drawn on board, escaping without any injury. Green was not so fortunate, being blinded by the steam and narrowly escaping being struck by the boat's wheel. He managed to secure hold of his overturned skiff and held on till he was rescued by some of the boat's crew. The officers of the Lioness deserve credit for their prompt action in the matter. The parties were returned to this city by Nat. Gels and Henry Schiltz, who had started to their rescue, and took passage on the Handy No. 2 for their home. "Catching on" to a towboat under way is always accompanied with danger, and we hardly think Messrs. Beck and Green will try it again very soon.

He Has Been Here.

In Monday's issue of the BULLETIN there appeared an article taken from the Clark County Democrat, referring to the visits of a party named G. W. McWhorter to schools of Winchester last week. McWhorter, according to the Democrat, professed to be working in the interests of a so-called "School Children's Orphan Home," at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and was soliciting money from the children of this State to pay for same. The Democrat expressed doubts as to whether such an institution as the one named had any existence at all. Since publishing the article in Monday's issue, we have been informed by Mr. W. S. Frank, President of the School Board, that a man given this name as R. L. McWhorter was in this city last week trying to work the same scheme here. He did not meet with any success, however, as the School Board refused him admission to the schools. The school board is now investigating, and the McWhorter is a fraud. The people of this State should know it.

The Cincinnati Enquirer is still confident the Democrats elected their legislative ticket in Hamilton County last Tuesday. The Enquirer generally knows what it is talking about, and rarely ever "gets left." More than all, its readers never fail to get the news.

CHARLES H. PHILLIPS, Private Secretary to President Lincoln at the time of the assassination, died at Griggsville, Ill., Sunday, of paralysis of the heart.
